In the Grünes Haus Museum visit

The museum in the Green House is located in Reutte's Untermarkt. The strong shade of green gives the house its name. The wonderful façade was designed in 1779 by Johann Jakob Zeiller. Awaiting you inside are beautiful murals and 11 stuccoed ceilings.

Over around 550 m² of exhibition space you will find a varied and lovingly presented collection. You can see valuable paintings from the painter's workshop of the Zeiller artist family. Well worth seeing are the works of Anna Stainer-Knittel, better known as Geierwally. Visit our clock display and the original-style tavern and discover archaeological finds from our region. The impressive Rodfuhrtafeln tell about the historic heyday of the salt trade in Reutte.

Knights of Hohenegg workshop Guided tour hammer mill

Over 700 years of history awaits. The forge in this guise is a cultural rarity throughout Tyrol. Its origins extend right back to the Middle Ages. It was the armoury of the Knights of Hohenegg (13th – 17th century).

The forge has 3 water wheels, a chimney, 3 hammers, a camshaft, bellows, transmissions, various tools and machinery, as well as a small museum. Also worth taking a look at is the former castle church of St. Anna (Roman in origin) right next to the forge. The historic Hammerschmiede Vils is open whatever the weather and is an ideal excursion destination, which is also very interesting for children.

Dive into the kingdom of the „Last wild one“ („Der Letzte Wilde“)

Nature exhibition

The nature exhibition “The last wild one” reveals the special features of a wild river: wide river bed, gravel islands, branched river arms and extensive alluvial forests – one of the last wild rivers in the Northern Alps – the Tyrolean Lech.

Why is the Tyrolean Lech so unique?

What is a wild river and why is it protected?

The exhibition opens up exciting insights through objects and media. Observe scenes from times past and follow the course of the River Lech as a bird would, from its origins to Lechfall.

Head out on safari into Europe’s last jungle area – the riparian forests – and listen to the talking stones, which tell stories of their geological origins and special features. The exhibition spans the entire network, through to the littlest details of this impressive wild river. Be inspired!
